GOVERNMENT ENTERPRISES.

Nothing can be more obvious than that the great progress of the Plate since General Roca took office is mainly due to the Public Works carried on by his Government, and one of the chief causes of the pressure in the money market now is the suspicion that, owing to the turn affairs have taken in Europe, the Argentine Government may be pinched to find money to carry on its gigantic works.

These great Government enterprises have spread comfort and happiness and sunshine through the Interior, lifting as it were the people and the very country high over the dead level of previous River-Platism, and putting new life and vigor into everything. Within 3 short years everything has grown from infancy to manhood, and all due to the impulse of these Government enterprises.

We have no words save those of praise for a line of policy which has spread broad-cast over the land so much prosperity, but the question necessarily occurs to many who study the best interests of this country, how much longer is this Government patronage of our industries and enterprises to last, or has not the country risen to sufficient rank to work out its own Public Works without the aid of Government and through the powerful agency of individual enterprise and private capital ?

We, for one say yes, and that any future Government enterprises in the Plate may be marked as grave political errors. Even many of the works now being carried on by the Government should be sold to public companies, chartered to conclude the works, and with the proceeds of the sale the Public Debt of the country could be reduced.

The prolongation of the Tucuman Railway is but a work of supererogation, since a company could be found willing to buy up the present line and works, and continue the line to Jujuy quicker and cheaper than the Government could do it.

The City Improvement Works, instead of being carried out by the Government (not a member of which knows the difference between a sewerage and a water pipe) should be sold to a company conditioned for their immediate conclusion.

The Riachuelo Works, for which such splendid offers were made to the Government by Mr. John Fair, should be at once disposed of at a fair price to a public company that would contract for their completion.

The Mendoza Railway is now finished. Let us hope that President Roca and Dr. Plaza will at last be convinced of the folly of hawking the credit of the country about Paris and London to make loans for these works which the railway contractors and capitalists of Europe would be but too glad to take in hand and carry out on a fair concession.

The plain fact of the matter is, that the Argentine Government requires no new loans at all, if the Cabinet will but turn over a new leaf and, instead of turning the Government House into a Railway contractor's office, mind the affairs of the nation and allow private capital and enterprise to carry out here as it does elsewhere those great works, which only in the infancy of the country Government had the slightest right to help or meddle with.

How vastly different would be the state of this market, and this country to-day if, instead of the Government, we had Public Joint Stock Companies carrying out all those great works for the continuation of which the Government is now trying to make loans.

Minister Plaza has a splendid role to play by turning over a new leaf, and throwing open to public competition these works, which are now in the hands of the Government, and which usurp a position in the Government House, hostile to the spirit of our Constitution and the genius of Argentine Republicanism.

The Southern Railway, luckily for the Province of Buenos Aires, is a Joint Stock concern, with a capital of six millions sterling, well and ably managed, and so far from being a burthen, is a blessing to the interests and industries of the province. It would be well for the National Government if it could invite another such company with six millions sterling to make railways for us in every direction through the provinces. The Argentine Republic has advanced so fast within the last 3 years that Government enterprises are no longer required, their continuance is even an error, and the sooner we throw open all such works to foreign capital, foreign competition, and Joint Stock Company Agency, the sooner we shall emancipate ourselves from loan troubles and explanations which have formed our newspaper literature for the last week.

THE PLATE IN ITALY.

Sr. Garcia, Argentine Minister in London, in a recent note to his Government called attention to the now very favorable tone of the English press respecting the River Plate countries, and mentioned some of the leading English papers, including the Times, as distinguished for the friendly notices and articles published on the Plate.

In former years all the papers of Europe attacked the River Plate, its people, customs and Government, and yet, spite of this abuse, emigration from Europe to the Plate year in year out steadily grew. Now our European colleagues have changed their tune, and even in Italy we find the press publishing the most complimentary articles about us. Doubtless this changed tone of the European press will be reflected in the increased figures of our immigration returns, and we expect the total arrivals from Europe this year will reach 100,000, and go on steadily increasing. With much pleasure we reproduce the following remarks of our Italian colleague Corriere Mercantil de Genova, as they will be read with deep satisfaction here, not only by Argentines, but by foreigners, whose lives fortunes and families are identified with the fortunes of the Plate—

It is now nearly twenty years ago since the Argentine Republic began to attract European emigration. In 1857 there disembarked in Buenos Aires 4591 emigrants of all the nations of Europe, and increasing year by year, the European emigration figure for 1878 was 35,876. Since then, with regard to the other European nations there has been a pause, neither increasing nor decreasing; the figures, however, show a continued increase for the Italians.

In 1879 Italian emigrants to the Argentine Republic, in a total of 38,000 foreigners, were 14,634, and in 1881 of a total of 32,817 Europeans 20,000 at least were Italians.

In 1882 and 1883 the numbers of our countrymen bound for the Arg. Republic showed still a large increase. In fact in the past year, of those that set out from the port of Genoa for 'America meridional' 31,121 manifested a desire to disembark in Buenos Aires.

It is, however, to be remarked that the 'Sociedad de Navegacion' delivers tickets for Buenos Aires and Montevideo at precisely the same price, so that many without the slightest prejudice might disembark in Montevideo instead of Buenos Aires, which, however, would stand equally well for the reverse case.

Although, however, indirect emigration from French ports has been very slight, an extraordinary total has been reached out of all proportion to former years. Seeking the cause of this phenomenon I found it was due to temporary emigration on account of the new and extensive works in construction in that Republic.

This is not, however, the place to inscribe a eulogy to the Arg. Republic; but we may at all events affirm that the increased Italian immigration in that young country sufficiently evidences the prosperity of our fellow countrymen in that more than friendly, I may say sister-land. And I am all the more pleased that the Italians there by individual labour have wrested from the other foreigners the first place in agriculture in the fertile province of Santa Fé, and in commerce, industry and art in the very Capital of the Republic.

The Colonization Law of the Republic is amongst the best known in all America, and shows to advantage beside that in force in our colonies. It was proposed to the Italian Government as a model on which to colonize 4,000,000 hectareas of our uncultivated lands by that learned writer Leon Carpi.

It is therefore nothing strange that the current of Italian emigration should tend towards the Argentine Republic and evolve greater proportions day by day, in view of the course pursued by that Government, which directly contrary to that followed by the W. Coast republics, holds out the banner of peace and industry, the parents of progress.

SANTA FE SIXTY YEARS AGO.

Sir Francis Head, The Pampas and the Andes

In invading the country, the Indians generally ride all night, and hide themselves on the ground during the day; or, if they do travel, crouch almost under the bellies of their horses; who by this means appear to be dismounted and at liberty. They usually approach the huts at night at a full gallop, with their usual shriek, striking their mouths with their hands—and this cry, which is to intimidate their enemies, is continued through the whole of the dreadful operation.

Their first act is to set fire to the roof of the hut, and it is almost too dreadful to fancy what the feelings of a family must be, when, after having been alarmed by the barking of the dogs, which the Gauchos always keep in great numbers, they first hear the wild cry which announces their doom, and in an instant afterwards find that the roof is burning over their heads.

As soon as the family rush out, which they of course are obliged to do, the men are wounded by the Indians with their lances, which are eighteen feet long, and as soon as they fall they are stripped of their clothes; for the Indians, who are very desirous to get the clothes of the Cristians, are careful not to have them spoiled by blood. While some torture the men, others attack the children, and will literally run the infants through the body with their lances, and raise them to die in the air. The women are also attacked, and it would form a true but a dreadful picture to describe their fate, as it is decided by the momentary gleam which the burning roof throws upon their countenances.

The old women, and the ugly young ones, are instantly butchered; but the young and beautiful are idols, by whom even the merciless hand of the savage is arrested. Whether the poor girls can ride or not, they are instantly placed upon horses, and when the hasty plunder of the hut is concluded, they are driven away from its smoking ruins, and from the horrid scene which surrounds it.

At a pace which in Europe is unknown, they gallop over the trackless regions before them, fed upon mare's flesh, sleeping on the ground, until they arrive in the Indians' territory, when they have instantly to adopt the wild life of their captors.

I was informed by a very intelligent French Officer, who was of high rank in the Peruvian army, that, on friendly terms, he had once passed through part of the territory of these Pampas Indians, in order to attack a tribe who were at war with them, and that he had met several of the young women who had been thus carried off by the Indians.

He told me that he had offered to obtain permission for them to return to their country, and that he had, in addition, offered them large sums of money if they would, in the mean while, act as interpreters; but they all replied, that no inducement in the world should ever make them leave their husbands, or their children, and that they were quite delighted with the life they led.

While I was sitting upon the side seat of the carriage, reflecting on the cruelties which had been exercised in a country which, in spite of its history, was really wild and beautiful, and which possessed an air of unrestrained freedom which is always exhilirating, I remarked that the carriage was only at a walk, an occurrence which in South America had never before happened to me, and in an instant it stopped. "Vea, Señor," said Pizarro, with a firm countenance, as he turned back to speak to me, "que tanta gente !" he pointed with his right hand before him, and I saw that the smoke which I had before observed was dust, and in it I indistinctly saw a crowd of men on horseback in a sort of wild array; and on both flanks, at a great distance off, individual horsemen, who were evidently on the look out to prevent a surprise. Our horses were completely tired; the whole body were coming rapidly towards us, and to mend the matter, Pizarro told me that he was afraid they were los Indios. "Señor," said he with great coolness, and yet with a look of despair, "Tiene armas á fuego ?" I told him I had none to spare for I had only a short double-barrelled gun and two brace of pistols. "Aqui un sable, Pizarro !" said I, pushing the handle of a sabre towards him from the window of the carriage. "Que sable !" said he, almost angrily; and raising his arm perpendicularly over his head, in a sort of despair, he added, "contra tanta gente !" but while his arm was in the position described, "Vamos" said he, in a tone of determined courage, and giving his hand half a turn, he spurred his jaded horse, and advanced instantly at a walk. Poor Cruz, the other peon, seemed to view the subject altogether in a different light; he said not a word, but as I cast a glance at him, I perceived that his horse, far from pulling the carriage, was now and then hanging back a little—a just picture of his rider's feelings. I could not help for a moment admiring Pizarro's figure, as I saw him occasionally digging his spurs into the side of his horse, which had me, the carriage, Cruz, and his horse to draw along; however, I now began to think of my own situation.

I earnestly wished I had never come into the country, and thought how unsatisfactory it was to be tortured and killed by mistake in other people's quarrels—however, this would not do. I looked towards the cloud of dust, and it was evidently much nearer. In despair, I got my gun and pistols, which were all loaded, and when I had disposed of them, I opened a small canvas bag which contained all my ammunition gimcracks, for my gun and pistols had all fulminating locks. I ranged all on the seat before me—the small powder-flask, the buck-shot, the bullets, the copper caps, and the punched cards but the motion of the carriage danced all together, and once or twice I felt inclined, in despair, to knock them all off the seat, for against so many people resistance was useless; however, on the other hand, mercy was hopeless, so I, at last, was driven to make the best of a very bad bargain. The carriage, which had a window at each of the four sides, had wooden blinds, which moved horizontally. I therefore shut them all, leaving an embrasure of about two inches, and then for some seconds I sat looking at the crowd which was coming towards us.

As they came close to us, for until then I could scarcely see them for dust, I perceived that they had no spears, and that they wore clothes; but as they had no uniforms I conceived that they were a crowd of Montaneros, who are quite as cruel as the Indians: however, as soon as they came to us, and when some of them had passed us Pizzaro pulled up and talked to them. They were a body of seven hundred wild Gauchos, collected and sent by the governors of Cordova and some other provinces, to proceed to Buenos Aires to join the army against the Brazilians; and on the flank they had scouts, to prevent a surprise by the Indians, who had invaded the country only a few weeks before.

It was really a reprieve; everything I saw for the rest of the day pleased me—and for many days afterwards, I felt that I was enjoying a new lease of my life.

GENERAL GORDON.

In view of the good news from Tokar which Havas gave us yesterday, the following will be read with much interest :—

The public will learn with much satisfaction that General Gordon started last night on a special mission to Egypt, accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonel Stewart. He will proceed as quickly as possible to Souakim, and we may anticipate his speedy co-operation with Baker Pacha in the effort to relieve and rescue the beleaguered garrisons in the Soudan. His appointment will be regarded as an earnest of the determination of the Government to take every possible means for the rescue of the persons whom the rash policy of the Egyptian Government—entered on and persisted in against the advice of this country—has exposed to all the risks of a retreat through hostile lands. The position of those garrisons, of the Egyptian officials and settlers, the traders and Europeans, with their wives and children, has excited universal sympathy. Though there is every reason to hope that the danger in which they stand has been greatly exaggerated in this country, it is quite proabble that a retreat across the Desert, which either the Souakim or the Korosko routes from Khartoum involve, would be exceedingly disastrous. The effort to relieve Khartoum and the nearest garrisons at Sincat and Tokar is consequently being watched with the greatest anxiety. The varying prospects of the relief—the accounts given from time to time of the armed preparations, the negotiations with friendly tribes, the routes by which it is thought a relieving force may travel—are all scanned with as much anxiety as though it was a British dependency which was in insurrection and British garrisons which were in danger. Though no direct responsibility for the position of matters in the Soudan belongs to us, and though the Government has been obliged to order the Khedive to give up a task for which his power has been shown to be unequal, the nation feels that our position in Egypt involves a moral obligation to do all that can be done to help Egypt out of the difficulty she has made for herself. This obligation has been recognised in the assistance given at Souakim and elsewhere, while it is further acted upon in the despatch of General Gordon to the scene. His mission has, of course, direct reference to the state of the Soudan. He takes his large and intimate knowledge of the country and its people, his experience in dealing with the Arab tribes and their rulers, and the magic of a name which every tribe in the Soudan knows either as a source of fear or of trust and confidence, to the help of the Egyptian Government in the rescue of its endangered subjects.

The anxiety about Khartoum is becoming intense. To-day's news is so bad that it could hardly be worse. Yet there is worse to come; for if Sinkat cannot be relieved, the retreat from Khartoum is cut off. As to the scheme of Baker Pasha for advancing with a small force and much money from Abyssinian lines, it is regarded by the military authorities as wholly impracticable. Yet Ministers hold very stiffly to their policy, justifying themselves for not sending forth an expedition on the ground that, if the facts are as bad as the rumours, it would be useless, for it could not act in time; and if facts are better, it would be a needless confession of a duty which is not admitted. Their supporters who know the facts add that the country has not yet got all the necessary information before it. There is less disquiet at the Foreign Office than exists abroad, and the fact is patent that pessimistic correspondents, informed for the most part by Egyptian authorities, are playing into the hands of the "eladors from the Soudan," who waited yesterday on the Khedive. Much has to be discounted of what is accepted for gospel, and there is still something to be known. But as hour after hour passes, and we do not even hear that Coltlogon has moved out, public feeling grows more sensitive. The Conservatives do not intend to neglect the opportunity for discrediting the Government, as Mr. Bourke's speech yesterday shows. It is imperative, therefore, that, if there are facts about Khartoum still to be revealed, the Foreign Office should say what they are.

MR. BARNUM'S WHITE ELEPHANT.

TOUNG TALOUNG.

London, Jan. 14th, 1884.

This afternoon Mr. Davis, Mr. Barnum's energetic and enterprising representative, leaves Euston for Liverpool, where the famous white elephant is expected to arrive to-morrow morning per steamship Tenasserim. Much anxiety is naturally felt as to its safe appearance after the numerous changes of climate it has passed through since leaving Rangoon. On its arrival at Liverpool it will at once be brought up to London by rail on a car that has been specially built for its reception. From Euston it will be taken to the Zoological Gardens, where it will be put in the elephant house and be exhibited to the wonder-loving British public for some weeks. It has only been by the exercise of the most untiring efforts and by the most skilled diplomacy that Mr. Barnum has at last been successful in securing this unique treasure; and one has already fallen a victim to the assassin's hand. In height the beast stands about 7ft. 6in., that is measured up to the shoulder, and in colour he may be said to be piebald. His face, ears, the front of his trunk, his front feet and part of his breast are of a pinkish flesh-colour; the remainder of the body is of a very light ash colour. Two Buddhist priests left Rangoon ten or twelve days after the Tenasserim, not being able to get away in time to accompany the elephant. These priests bear a strong resemblance to the famous tattooed Greek noblemen whom many have seen at the Westminster Aquarium, being tattooed from the lips down. These priests are expected to arrive in London in a fortnight's time, and they will be shown with the elephant and will go through the various ceremonials.

The most recent authority on white elephants is Mr. Carl Bock, and he tells us that the sanctity of a white elephant dates from the earliest period of Buddhist history. Indra himself rode on a three-headed elephant. When Gandama entered the womb of the queen to be born upon earth for the last time, it was in the form of an elephant, and, as albinos are supposed to have sovereignty over their race, a "white" elephant, however few the pale spots he may have, is revered throughout the breadth and length of the land. One of the proudest titles of the King of Siam is "Lord of the White Elephant." Not very long ago a real white elephant, who excelled all his fellows in beauty, was brought into Bangkok with all the pomp and ceremony of an emperor. According to Mr. Carl Bock he was quite an albino, the whole body being of a pale red-dish-brown colour, with a few white hairs on the back. The iris of the eye, the colour of which is held to be a good test of an albino, was a pale Naples yellow. He was blessed and baptized in the presence of the King and the nobility. One of the high priests presented him with a piece of sugar-cane, on which was written the elephant's name in full, and which he very readily ate. The following is a translation of his description, painted on a red tablet, hung over one of the pillars of his stall :—"An elephant of beautiful colour; hair, nails, and eyes are white. Perfection in form, with all signs of regularity of the high family. The colour of the skin is that of lotus. A descendant of the angels of the Brahmins. Acquired as property by the power and glory of the King for his service. Is equal to the crystal of the highest value. Is of the highest family of all in existence. A source of power of attraction of rain. It is as pure as the purest crystal of the highest value in the world." The elephant has for a companion a white monkey.

The elephant's native attendant takes his meals with his charge. He is a young fellow about eighteen, with the ordinary Burmese face, and is dressed in a long frieze coat, a ragged pair of trousers and a topee. He is immensely proud of his long black hair, which when loosened, flows down to his waist. His state robes are down below at present, but when we see him at the Zoological Gardens he will present a much more picturesque appearance. His native name is Radee. I have endeavoured to obtain several opinions as to the elephant's qualities from a naturalist's point of view, and all are unanimous so far in his praise. Mr. Berens tells me that he will be washed when he reaches the Zoo, and will then become two or three shades lighter. The face and ears, the front of the trunk, the breast and fore feet, I have already stated are of a pinkish flesh colour, and Mr. Berens states that his body also is covered with pink mottles about the size of half a crown. Mr. Bartlett, the Superintendent of the Zoological Gardens, says he is fairly surprised at the magnificent size of the brute. He has just sent off orders that the animal shall be washed with soap and water when he gets to the gardens. At present the cold would render the process dangerous. The railway van will be ready at eight to-morrow morning. When the elephant has walked aboard his feet will be attached by chains to ring-bolts let in the wood. I walked up with Mr. Charles White, who has brought him from Mandalay, and he had much to say respecting the little-known city of Mandalay and its pagodas. If all goes well, the elephant will reach Euston at four o'clock to-morrow afternoon. He will be swaddled in blankets for the railway journey. The private view at the Gardens will take place on Saturday morning.

LONDON LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

HOME RULE FOR SCOTLAND.

A national demonstration, in favor of the appointment of a Minister of State for Scotland, was held at Edinburgh yesterday in the Free Church Assembly Hall, and was attended by representatives of all shades of political opinion. The large hall was densely crowded, and among those present were the Marquis of Bute, Lords Aberdeen, Balfour, Dalhousie, Elgin, Stair, several members of Parliament, and delegates from all the principal burghs in Scotland, except Glasgow. The Marquis of Lothian presided. The resolutions adopted by the meeting affirmed that Scotland cannot satisfactorily be governed solely through the Home Office, and asked that a separate Department should be created, to be presided over by a Scotch Minister, and that Parliament should pass a measure early this session for the purpose. Lord Aberdeen, in moving the first resolution, illustrated the ignorance of Englishmen regarding Scotch affairs, by saying that a gentleman recently residing with him asked him if Free Churchmen were Episcopalians. Other resolutions were moved by Lord Balfour, the Provost of Dundee, and Lord Elgin.

I may add, that in proposing one of the resolutions the Provost of Dundee indulged in a very distinct threat against the House of Lords.

The Marquis of Lothian characterised the language of the Provost as "most ungenerous."

The question of a mitigated Home Rule in Scotland grows apace. The London newspapers are condescending enough to say that the Scotch people have only to define what they want and they shall have it. The fact is, they know that the English on the other side of the Tweed, the Bernicians of Alfred's day, who, in the Saxon era, were pent up between the Celt and Dane, and fought with one or the other, and, finally, with Norman England, have a knack of getting what they want, with or without permission. The present demand of the Scots is, of course, free from the elements which make a similar demand in Ireland a national danger; but it justifies all that is debatable in the Irish claims, and the source of the difficulty, apart from Radical antipathies, exists even in England itself. It has long been acknowledged that the Imperial Parliament is overcrowded, and that local and general domestic legislation is often sacrificed to questions of foreign policy, or even personal squabbles, that concern the House itself rather than the country at large.

PARIS LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

January 18th.

All is contradictory about China: France keeps despatching reinforcements to Tonkin; this may mean at the same time, to replace men "hors de combat," owing to the murderous climate. Egypt, the next important foreign question, is receiving close attention since England has got into a fix—the better to tighten her hold, say some, on the country. The French press certainly believes, that by badgering "perfide Albion," the Dual Control will be restored. And events in that line do not seem hopeless; the thin end of the wedge is being inserted. Political-economy-professor Beaulieu, the apostle of colonial extension, angrily urges his Government to take up a political attitude on the Suez Canal dispute. The professor is irritated, he has lost his election as deputy; and the Socialists have chalked him for a mobbing, as he denounced their doctrines.

The Republicans are at sixes and sevens on the proposed revision of the constitution; the Senate means to show fight, and to have a voice before being cooked, no matter how tempting the sauce. The Royalists squeak: the Bonapartists roar; and the Anarchists yell; for all now hold their public meetings. A reading of the speeches certainly does not illustrate the aphorism, that language was invented to conceal thought. The blows levelled against the Republic are only on a par with those mutually indulged in by its adversaries.

The Anarchists are looking forward to the coming of Mr Henry George. But they will add many post-scripts to his nationalization of land ideas; he must nationalize also house, factory, and funded property, or he will be voted a "bourgeois;" and the means, not the polling urn but repetition rifles. The Anarchists will soon turn that Gracchus inside out, for they are in a hurry. "Ars longa vita brevis." I notice the Anarchists, having repudiated the "Marseillaise," as about on a par with "Partant pour la Syrie," have fallen back on the Carmagnole.

The "Carmagnole" is the famous revolutionary dancing song which the "sans culottes" chanted during the wars of the First Republic. It is erroneously supposed to derive its name from the Village of Carmagnola, near the Po, in Italy, when taken by the French. But the latter did not enter that town, and which they did without striking a blow, till 1796, while the song was popular in all France in 1792. It is supposed to originate from a peculiar jacket worn by Italian workmen, and also by the laboring classes of Marseilles; when the relief army of the latter city marched on Paris, the Carmagnole was the predominating article of dress. It consisted of a jacket with short skirts, a high collar, and several rows of metallic buttons. It was the costume of a true blue republican. The Montagnards selected it as a party dress at the close of May 1793. Like the Phrygian cap, it was the sign of equality, and so worn by the representatives of the people.

However, the "full dress" Carmagnole toilette was a pair of black woollen pantaloons, ditto colored vest, and then the jacket as above, in tricolor or scarlet material, with the red cap. But after the 9th Thermidor, it was succeeded by the "incroyables" costumes of the Directoire.

Imported into Paris, the Carmagnole became immensely popular; it was sung and danced to, around 'trees of liberty,' and 'altars of the country.' As in the South of France, all joined in this revolutionary Sir Roger de Coverley; old and young; rich and poor, judges, generals, and deputies. Napoleon I. expunged it from the repertoire of military music, as did his nephew the 'Marseillaise.' But it was revived when the allies entered Paris. The name of the poet and the musician are unknown, and its most satirical verses are directed against Marie Antoinette, designated 'Madame Veto, as she was believed to veto all her husband's good resolutions. The song has been severely judged; ranked by some even as a musical obscenity, smelling of blood, and recalling the tiger and the panther. It is the authem of the guillotine. It is to be hoped then it will not beome popular. It makes the flesh creep.

'Ca ira' is often confounded with the Carmagnole. The former was composed first, and was likewise immensely popular. It was rather destined to celebrate the taking of the Bastille. It was the song executed by 200,000 Parisians—men, women, children clergy, nuns and nobles, who, to illustrate equality, became "navvies," wheeled earth, used pick, shovel and spade, for the Camp de Mars fete of June 1790. 'Ca ira' was adopted to a very pleasing air, the 'carillon national,' composed by Becourt. Marie Antoinette used to execute it on her harpsichord; later it beat her funeral march to the scaffold. A wandering minstrel named Ladre is said to have composed it; others attributed its origin to Benjamin Franklin, who when asked how the war of independence was progressing, replied 'Ca ira'; a good humored going on very well, as we at present familiarly say 'comme ça, or ça boulatie;' not bad; so so. The dictum became a song, a cry of vaillance and of faith.

The rag-pickers' strike is worse than the cabmen's; they intend to march on the Prefecture de Police, to protest against the new regulations prohibiting the emptying of house refuse in the streets—their diggings. There are 133 rag-pickers on the electoral roll.

We are slowly getting towards cremation; the authorities have consented that the débris of the anatomy theatres may be incinérated.

Cartouche, the celebrated thief, dashing and handsome as a d'Artagan, and for whom some ladies cried when he was executed, boasted that his greatest feat was to rob the police that arrested him. A police inspector has just been robbed of his valise, in his office under his nose, and which was duly 'guarded' by the force.

The 'utile' and the 'dulce.' When the police cannot identify a prisoner, they have him done in wax work, and placed in the Chamber of Horrors of our Mdme. Tussaud.

Dr Germain See, an authority, says, that by examining the expectoration of an invalid with a microscope, consumption, and its stage, can be at once recognised by the presence of animalcules.

Paul Bert, the enemy of American pork, the dread of all dogs, as he is a vivisectionist, an ex-Minister of public instruction says; if you have a bad tooth, encase it in a perforated bit of india-rubber, press it to the gum, and in four days the tooth will extract itself—'sans pain.'

EDITOR'S TABLE.

La Plata had better look out. In Chile and Peru they have had torrents of rain and terrible inundations, and the "agua" will probably pay us a visit soon, perhaps during Carnival. There were some signs of a coming change yesterday; the barometer showed a downward tendency, and our rheumatic subscribers complained awfully.

Some of the papers say the political news from Santa Fe is grave, but nobody has been buried, as there has been no fighting or cracked skulls as yet. It is devoutly to be hoped that there will be nothing done that may lead to another Indignation Meeting.

The news from Tokar yesterday was an agreeable surprize. It shows that the Mahdi's hordes are not invincible, and this sharp defeat will cause thousands of them to abandon him, or perhaps "remove" him.

The Jockey Club programme for the Autumn Meeting at Palermo, on March 25th was sent round yesterday. There are six events on the card, and good sport may be looked for.

It wont be for want of force that La Plata's population will not increase. The latest rumour is that, when the Provincial Bank is moved to the new capital, nobody except merchants will get a copper, unless he is domiciled in La Plata.

Food-preserving is going ahead in this country. Only a few weeks ago Messrs. Montanaro, Watts and Hunter started fruit-preserving on Calzetta Island; then Mr. Gruger of the Frascati Hotel sent us his peaches and ducks. (The latter are the daintiest morsel we ever tasted), and now partridge-preserving on a large scale is to be started at Olavarria. We hope the birds will not be killed out of season.

Figaro's shafts get keener every day, a refined kind of wit to which Argentine journalism has hitherto been a stranger. Our colleague was, from the first, a favourite "in Posse," now it is a public favourite "in esse," and is to be seen everywhere. Its scented satire is deadly.

Hurrah! The rain must be coming at last. Things are so dry with our colleagues now that the "Monster Melon" has appeared. The "locus in quo" is Canelones B. O., and the size 1 metre 20 by 77 centimetres.

We recommend families either to buy the Cronista of yesterday and read its remarks on the City Analyst's report on the poisonous wine now sold in town or, better still, get the report itself and read, study and inwardly digest it. The stuff sold as "vino de mesa" is pure poison, and the only safety is in Argentine wine, or water, or brandy and water; but then the brandy is as bad as the wine. "Aye there's the rub."

A breezy affair is reported from Maldonado, B. O. A 'masher' at the theatre 'pomitoed' the Byron collar of the Juez Letrado, and the worthy magistrate at once applied his blackthorn cane to the back of the offender. The by-standers then, most unfairly, fell on the poor Justice and made mash of him from his hat to his heels. Our sympathies are entirely with the mauled Justice.

Mr Albert Huergo bravely saved a drunken Ausonian from a watery grave at the Tigre on Monday evening. The man could swim well, but the cold shock gave him a fit of apoplexy, and Mr. H. just managed to seize him by the hair when he was sinking for the third time. When he recovered his senses his gratitude to Mr. Huergo knew no bounds, and he called the 'manes' of Father Mathew to witness that he would never touch a drop of spirits in his life again.

We are glad to welcome back to his post in the Montevidean Telegraph Office Mr. W. H. Smith who has been 20 days in bed owing to having injured his foot in the Calle Piedad Baths. Now he is quite recovered, and able to kick football, or dance a mazy walse.

President Roca and General Bogran of Honduras have been great and good friending each other, on the occasion of the latter being elected President of the home of mahogany.

A German Professor named Gruselbach has invented a process for freezing human beings for a certain length of time, and thawing them out again. If the Professor was out here now, he would make a rapid fortune, as half the population would willingly have themselves frozen as hard as a carcase of Drabble Company mutton, till the weather cools permanently.

An attempt was made on Monday to "do" the Provincial Bank of Rosario out of 2,000 pats. by means of a forged cheque. It turned out that the drawer is a religious lunatic.

There are bakers with that appendage called a conscience. A Tandil Knight of the Oven has reduced the price of his loaves by 50 per cent, because flour has fallen in that ratio. It is a pity Diogenes is not alive; he would much like to make the acquaintance of this wonderful baker.

The new stone pavement in Calles Artes and Suipacha is an awful humbug. Though not laid a fortnight, it is already all ruts and holes. It is much the same in every other part of the city; yet this miserable excuse for pavement costs the taxpayers its weight in gold What is the Municipal Engineer about ?

A clergyman tells the following story: "I once married a handsome couple, and as I took the bride by the hand at the close of the ceremony and gave her my warmest congratulations, she tossed her pretty head and, pointing to the bridegroom, replied, 'I think he is the one to be congratulated.'"

On the 27th Jan. an Electric tramway trial took place in Rio Janeiro and with the most complete success. The attendance was extremely large and everybody approved thereof. We must have electric tramways here also soon.

We find the following queer paragraph in a Chilian exchange. We ought to get Shahueque and his merry men to get up a 'villatun' here, as many people fear it will never rain again in Buenos Aires :—

"The Indians here held a 'villatun' lately. This is a religious ceremony or offering up of prayer for rain, on which occasion they plant a sacred tree and dance round it. Each one is supposed to bring a black sheep which is slaughtered and the blood thrown in the air, while all the time a sorceress is hidden up in the tree praying away like mad. The ceremony over, they all get blazing drunk. Four days after this one, the rain came."

The extension of the Catalinas Mole will commence next month. It will be lengthened 350 metres, and the Montevidean steamers will be able to haul alongside to embark and land their passengers. The Ligurian Othellos who own the small boats and have plundered the public for so many years, feel that their "occupation's gone," and are "reversing their prayers" in Mr. Seeber's favour.

The French Company in the Jardin Florida give a performance to-night for the benefit of Mde. Rey's children. Mde. Rey was most popular with her fellow-artists, and it is a sign at once of good feeling and charity. There is sure to be a large attendance.

The usual police regulations have been issued for Carnival, but Jupiter only knows when they will be enforced. We suspect a strong tendency towards leniency in the police on this point.

Colonel Solá, Governor of Salta, arrived here on Wednesday and, our Argentine colleagues say, was entertained that night at a grand lunch in the Hotel de Londres. We hope they wont take it badly if we inform them that lunch is a meal taken between breakfast and dinner, so, unless a man dines at 1 o'clock in the morning, a meal taken at 8 p.m. of the previous day cannot be called lunch. Yet, after all, what's in a name? If the cook and the cellar be good, it does not matter whether you call the feast lunch, tea or tiffin.

The papers are doing their dead best to work up a little enthusiasm for Carnival, but it is a dead failure. Every decent person dreads the approach of the Saturnalia.

An evening "cronista" says that a run in the Belgrano Tramway is worse than the cholera or yellow fever. The writer should give the three a fair trial, and then tell us the result, if he live to do so. We suspect that his verdict would be in favour of the tramway.

Dr. Von den Steinen, the naturalist, and Mr. Von den Steinen, the painter left yesterday for Asuncion; Dr Claus, the mathematician, will soon follow them, then all three will start for an exploration expedition to the Amazonas via Matto Grosso. Dr Claus will ascertain the exact geographical position of Asuncion during his stay there, in combination with Mr Bachmann, the chief of the naval school, who will communicate to him the chronometrical time by telegraph.

Pildoras Holloway.

Las virtudes de esta admirable medicina son especialmente eficaces para expulsar de la Sangre toda impureza. En los casos de debilidad, ella es incomparable, al paso que cura radicalmente las Indigestiones, y los desordenes generales del Hígado, del Estomago, y de los Intestinos, restableciendose, como por encanto, el vigor y la salud normal, dichas Pildoras remueven asimismo las dolencias que suelen sufijir a las Mugeres al llegar estas a la edad critica.

Unguente Holloway.

Este incomparable Balsamo sana los Males de Piernas y de Pecho, las Llagas Antiguas, y aun esas Ulceras cuyo orijen no conviene mencionar en un anuncio publico. Para todas las Erupciones cutaneas no hay remedio igual al Unguente Holloway, al que millares deben la salvacion, tanto de sus Brazos y Piernas como de su existencia.

Antes de comprar, examinese con mucha cautela el Rotulo en el Bote o la Caja, para cerciorarse si esta la direccion de 533 Oxford Street, London, pues si no esta, entonces se trata de perpetrar un descarado engaño.

February 21st, 1884

Cedulas E	87⅞
Cedulas F	84⅞
National Bank Shares....	129½

The market for shares opened rather firmer to-day; some strong parties have checked the headlong march of the Bear King, and the general belief that a very heavy 'descubierto' stands for the end of the month has rather checked the weakness in this stock, as they say that there is one party who has sold over 12,000 shares, and will have to buy them back after Carnival. Cedulas rule weaker than when Mr. Balbin was in Paris; some large lots carried over from previous months at ⅛ and ¼ will be brought on the Bolsa, as the money, according to the German brokers, has been called up and will be remitted.

Exchange looked much better this morning and first-class paper was offering at 47⅛. The Government, it seems, has remitted all that it requires and will not be a taker in the market, and the sales of some hides and large lots of wool, supplies the market with bills. The export business is far brisker than many suppose, and we note in the last fortnight of January 26,000 bales of wool were shipped, which even for a whole month would be a good business. A cargo of salted hides was sold yesterday in the market at reserved rate, and in wool, wheat and linseed there is always a steady business going on in the Plazas. In view of all this we need not be surprised if exchange rules firm and more bills be offered.

Cedulas—
For cash E 1,000 at 87⅛
For Feb. 29th E 30,000 at 87⅛
For cash F 38,700 at 85-84⅞-⅛-¼
Sales, 78,700

National Bank Shares—
For Feb. 29th 1,700 at 128¾-129-¼-½
For March 31st 450 at 130¼ 31
For March 31st (deliverable) 1,600 at 125
Sales, 3,750.

Italian Bank Shares—
For cash 25 at 144

One small lot of Italian Bank shares, 25, sold to-day at 144, which, with the 6 per cent. dividend paid last week, makes the price of these shares come out at 150. As this stock is a gold-paying dividend stock, it is one of the most desirable in the market.

H.E. the Minister of War granted the escort to the English expedition starting from the Rio Negro for the Southern Andes. We shall watch with much interest the progress of this expedition.

Some idea of the great movement going on in the South can be gathered from the fact that at the fonda at La Gama, on last Monday night, 150 persons stopped, waiting to start next morning on horses and in coaches for the estancias.

Mr. Walker, manager of Messrs. Runciman and Gilmour's estancia, Venado Tuerto, was welcomed on 'Change. He reports everything doing well up there, and he thinks of putting one of Younger's windmills and pumps on the land.

It was announced in American circles on 'Change that there will be a reception tomorrow, Washington's birth-day, on board the U.S. man-of-war Nipsic, in the Boca.

Exchange on Montevideo is down to 1⅛, and we hear that drawers on Europe down there have to send their bills up to be passed here. One of our private banks took £50,000 on London at 47⅜-½.

The balance-sheet of the National Bank was out to-day; it will be found at foot. It is an all-important paper at the moment. The cash on hand is 6,108,122 m/n. and the emission 16,256,870.

Discount brokers report money tichter today than yesterday, and exchange this afternoon grew very weak; first-class pagares done at 7½. 100,000 pats. on shares at par at 10½; and they say one million of pats. have been secured for the end of the month to take up Cedulas at 10 per cent. Cedulas valued at 80, but we doubt the news.

The Toro sails for Patagones, without fail, on the 23rd inst.

Shares at afterhours were pushed to 130 and then down to 129⅞ sellers. Cedulas heavy as lead, 87⅜ sellers.

The article in to-day's Prensa on the export dues was greatly spoken of and praised by merchants.

We have much pleasure in announcing that Mr Anderson and some two or three other very rich New Zealanders, are coming out to this country in the Hevelius with Mr Musgrave, the well-known estanciero of the South. The visit of these gentlemen to the Plate is of the highest importance, as if they take a favorable view of our lands, they will invest largely in our best camps, and they will be followed by others who are only too anxious to get out of New Zealand, owing to the supremacy of capital there.

Mr. Glover, of Rosario, was welcomed on 'Change. Mr O'Grady and Mr Evans from the South also.

It was rumoured on 'Change this afternoon that the Provincial Bank had commenced taking exchange and had taken several millions of francs; on enquiring we learn from a Director that there is not a word of truth in this rumour. About 1,200,000 francs passed by one leading firm. Exchange again looks down owing to the large takers, francs quoted at

Paris 5.01
France 5.02
Antwerp 5.03
London 47⅛-⅜.

We learn on good authority that an English house here with branch in Rosario will be put into liquidation by order of the home house.

The Catalina Mole is to be extended 350 metres, this is grand news for shippers.

Telegrams from London yesterday gives Unified Uruguays up 52¾, and telegrams from London to-day give Hard Dollars down 2½-88½, this is a sharp fall.

In reply to our correspondent "Micky Free," we beg to say that he has made rather too free with Pope's lines, which are these :—

A little learning is a dangerous thing ;
Drink deep, or taste not the pierian spring ;
There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again.

They appear in Part II. of the "Essay on Criticism." Pierian spring means a spring of knowledge. The strict meaning of pierian is "of, or belonging to Pierides," the name given to the nine Muses.

Two sailors of the Uruguay, National gunboat, came on shore some mornings ago to obtain meat for their vessel. Due to some exhiliration caused by the sublime effects of alcohol, and which made them show some reluctance in again embarking, the matter ended in knives being drawn, although fortunately without any harm resulting. The guard on duty succeeded in disarming them, and a boat was sent for them from the Uruguay.

The Florida Gardens, the great summer resort of pleasure-seekers, is shut up until after Carnival (excepting Mdme Rey's benefit to-night) when it will again be eager to embrace all its frequenters. By the way, talking of Carnival, some of our well-informed colleagues gave it out some time ago that Miss Preziozi was to have been here for that festive time. A prudent silence has since been maintained on the point, but we should like to know is it "to be or not to be."

There was nearly being a nice smash at Moron on Tuesday, due to the negligence of the pointsman. Two trains, that were supposed to cross each other, were on the same line and only forty yards distant when they succeeded in stopping them. There was terrific alarm amongst the passengers, and one lady wanted to make a suicide of herself by jumping off the platform, but happily was prevented. It was a narrow squeak.

Twenty convicts, under guard of an officer and 12 rank and file, are at work on the excavations in the Palermo Park. This is certainly a praiseworthy step in the right direction, and when we have every man in the Penitentiary at such work, we shall have seen the correction of a great abuse. There has been enough and too much of the "dolce far niento" hitherto in our convict's life.

Wooden paving at last is coming slowly but surely, and, perhaps, we shall live to see the whole centre of the city, at least, paved with wood, and wood only. Messrs. Bonmarie and Co. propose to the Municipality to pave 100 squares, at 5 Nats. the square metre, and offer to make a trial of two squares. Their system is like that employed in Suipacha, but with some slight difference. By all means, let them try.

Let persons travelling to the Boca in tram-cars keep a sharp look-out. The arches for the Carnival illuminations are placed so close to the rail that if even the tip of one's nose is outside the line of the car, it is certain to be taken off. Two 'mayorales' were severely hurt on Tuesday by coming in contact with the arches.

ENGLISH DRAMATIC SEASON
AUGUST, SEPTEMBER, OCTOBER, 1884

THE undeniable success of his recent venture places the Manager, not only in possession of most useful experience and knowledge of the Taste of the Buenos Aireau Public, but, further, gives him Confidence for the Future, and enables him to form Plans of far Greater Magnitude than he felt justified in doing when he was but entering upon a field of speculation, with discouraging prophecies from every quarter.

He realizes that the Public wants High-Class Comedies of the 'Byronic' Style, and occasionally a good Spectacular Drama, (such as those lately given at the Opera House) with one or two specimens of the Romantic School of Play, now so much in vogue in London ('Silver King,' 'Lights of London,' 'Youth,' etc); and, further, that the excellence of those works must be guaranted by sound London reputation.

It is worthy of remark that during the past season, those plays having familiar titles, drew larger audiences than even far better productions the names of which were unknown in Buenos Aires.

Experience teaches the Manager to provide good Scenic Display and Lavish Adornment of the Stage for Every Production, and whilst claiming to have expended large sums in the Setting and Appointing of Drawing-Room Comedies during his first season, he now Resolves to Eclipse all Former Efforts, and, indeed, Produce every Play in a manner worthy of the best Theatres in London.

For this purpose he will bring Handsome Furniture and Appointments from the Noted House of Lyons & Co. of London, and Exquisite Costumes from the most reputed Metropolitan Houses.

The great difficulty which has been encountered to give English plays appropriate setting with Italian opera decorations will now be completely obviated, for, in addition to a good supply of scenery at present being prepared in London, a competent artist will be engaged to paint special scenes for characteristic productions.

'The past gnarantees the future' is a motto that the public will allow is perfectly justifiable, for if, amidst the most bewildering difficulties, Mr. Latham was enabled to manage his theatre for three months with uninterrupted success, producing in that time thirty different plays, he is now entitled to hope from the public further confidence for the future, when the advantages of capital, experience and faith in support, will give him facilities for serving the community, which he will turn to the best account.

Agents are even now actively engaged in securing for the management the very latest London successes, and entering into negotiations with several well known artistes, Mr. W. Scouler having left for England with full authority to close engagements commenced by the agents.

The difficulty in securing a tenor worthy of Buenos Aires (it is a notorios fact that the foreign population of cities is always most critical) will probably retard the production of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, but if postponed for a short period the, will be reserved for a very auspicious occasion, viz., the opening of an entirely English Theatre in our midst, (the site for which has already been negotiated), and which Mr. Latham trusts to dedicate to public service during the forthcoming year.

Finally : Aided by the good wishes and friendly concourse of the public at large, and having the hearty cooperation of many wealthy and influential residents, not onely among the English, but also among the French, Belgian and Argentine population, Mr. Latham with perfect confidence, announces inauguration of his second season for the

Friday, August 1st 1884

The Company consisting of Seventeen Competent Artistes, viz :

SEVEN LADIES AND TEN GENTLEMEN

(Exclusive of working staff and orchestra.)

The manager notes with great satisfaction that very many of the first subscribers have repeated their guarantees for the ensuing season, and begs to inform the general publi that he will shortly be prepared to book new subscribers at fifteen per cent redneution in the price of the thirty performances, former terms holding good to original 'abonados.'

Subscriptions payable on the arrival of the Company.

Mr. Latham leaves Buenos Aires on or about the 15 h proximo, thus securing ample time in England.
